Superintendent's Newsletter

Dr. Wayne F. Gersen

At the most recent Board of Directors' meeting on Monday, July 12, the Board began the development of their goals for the 1982-83 school year. Eva Twitchell, Board Chairman, and Wayne F. Gersen, Superintendent, developed a list of proposed goals based upon their mutual assessment of the Board's direction in the coming fiscal year. Three of the proposed goals for 1982-83 were extensions of Board goals from 1981-82. These goals, and a brief explanation of each is listed below:

1. Ensure the Successful Completion of the Elementary Improvement Plans for S.A.D. #44. In 1981-82, the Board decided to replace the existing Woodstock Elementary School in Bryant Pond with a new energy efficient building, while deferring the construction project in Bethel until state funding would be more likely. In reaching this decision, the Board fulfilled all of its 1981-82 goals and objectives regarding facility improvement.

Now that the State Board of Education has granted concept approval for the construction on this project in Woodstock, the district must conduct a referendum on the project within four months. Passage of the continued on Page Five

FROM THE bethel town office

The Board of Selectmen met Monday evening, July 26, in the Town Office meeting room to consider several items that had been postponed from the previous meeting's long agenda.

Interviews with special police officer/constable candidates were conducted as the Board continues the effort to build a force of trained and qualified people. Allan Afflerback of Harrison was appointed special police officer. Allan has a distinguished record in police work. In the East Providence, R.I., department for eight years, he was praised for his courage, proactivity and enthusiasm by his superiors and peers alike. After moving his family to Maine and a brief respite in the construction industry, Allan returned to police work with the Norway Police Department. Allan comes as a well-known member of the Bethel team. Meanwhile, Board review of officer applicants will continue in future meetings.

Municipal Facilities Committee Chairman Roland Glines outlined plans and cost estimates for implementation of two Cole Block energy efficiency improvement projects, namely, front window plate glass replacement with thermopane and first floor north side window unit upgrade. The total cost is estimated at $3,150 to be paid for from rental funds, half of which will be reimbursed from a state grant for energy conservation projects in local government buildings. According to an energy study completed on the Cole Block by state engineers, costs for these projects will amortize in less than six years through heating oil savings. Mr. Glines explained that these steps, particularly the replacement of north wall windows with thermopane units, are a necessary prelude to the continued on Page Four

The theme of the two day event is old-time pastimes and is intended to convey to all attending a sense of how generations of the past may have amused themselves.

The event recalls Bethel's original name which was in effect from 1768 until the town was incorporated in 1796. For further information please call the Society at 824-2908.

A lovely week just passed and a lot was accomplished by me. I finally got to see Eva Yates at Sunday River road in the rain but I didn't mind the rain a bit. I took her a loaf of bread right from the oven and a quart of strawberries right from the freezer. She was gaining but wasn't ready to go to a dance. Hope her knees will feel stronger soon, so she will get around better. They say these are the "Golden Years" but don't know what is gotten unless it's the pain and aches. Thursday evening Joe and I picked up Doris and Robert Lawrence and we went to Mexico to see the new trailer home of our niece, Arlene Abbott and family. It is lovely and it is in a lovely spot with shade trees and a lovely lawn.

Wilbur "Skip" Chamberlain was operated on again at Central Maine Medical Center, Lewiston, Thursday. Our best to him.

The peas and raspberries have been in full swing this past week, and I was busy after they were brought into the house. Yummie.

Our supper on July 24, was well patronized in the heat. The strawberries disappeared like magic, but the cream didn't want to whip up like it should have but it went the way of the berries. Several people from Massachusetts just loved the home baked beans with home cured ham and said everything with just delicious. Our own "Pete" Andrews was with us and we were all glad to see him. Come again. Mrs. Lofon Hutchinson and her girl friend of Bethel were also present, and it seems that her mother used to work with my mother at Birch Villa Inn at Bryant Pond years ago, so we had lots in common. We will look for them next month. The hall was full to the rafters and we found that we need to invest in some chairs. We appreciate all the good people coming to eat with us and helping us in so many ways. It sure gives us courage to plan another supper. We enjoy it, even if it is hot. And it is hot every-where.

Doris Lawrence is at home now and had the following callers: Barbara Felt, Sharon and Jenny, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Card, Joe and Eveline Vatcher, Arnold Coffin, Robert Pierce, Norman, Arlene and Jo-Anne Abbott. Arnold had dinner there on Sunday.

The Vatchers and Harlan Abbott went to Mr. and Mrs. Sayward Lamb's camp at North Pond, Locke Mills, to discuss floats for the "Old Home Day" parade, and they also saw cute puppies (bird dog), 10 in number and were they smart and spry? I enjoyed seeing their camp. It is lovely.

Mrs. Rhoda Vatcher went to Saugus, Mass., on July 21 and brought her daughter, Mrs. Rhoda Labbe and two sons back with her on Friday to visit until Mr. Labbe returns from Texas, where he is attending Military Police School. Barry Noyes went with Rhoda as he had never been to Massachusetts. He enjoyed it all and he liked the Chinese food, new to him.

John Emery, Westbrook, who lives on the Trask road had a new septic tank installed last week and a new well dug. He will move up here in September. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reidy also on the Trask road will have a well dug on Tuesday of this week. One cannot live without water.

Robert Lambert and Walter Pupkins of Tyngsboro, Mass., came to the Oxford area on business Tuesday, so they called on the Vatchers, just as four loaves of bread were being taken from the oven. Who is on a diet?

Many cars, trucks and people went by Sunday on their way to the mud races and some of the cars and trucks looked like they had been to war on their way back home. It must be fun.

Dominick Pelkewick of Saugus, Mass., called on his old boss, Joe Vatcher, Saturday, but we were at the supper so went to the Conservation School in Bryant Pond Sunday to call on him. Eveline was interested in looking around and noting the changes that had taken place since the last time that she was there in 1927. Mr. Freeman was living then and he used to invite the 4-H clubs to have their picnics there. The students old and young were arriving Sunday and we talked with a man from Oregon. Others were from Florida, New York, North Carolina, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and many others. It was so quiet and peaceful as it was in bygone days. I wouldn't mind going to school there for the summer.

The annual Water Rescue and Pledge was held Sunday, July 25, at the Greenleaf camp, Songo Pond. All those attending enjoyed themselves.

The B.E.A.R.S. are planning on attending the Energy Field Day on August 7 at Telstar Regional High School from 10 to 3. Stop by for a free blood pressure check. More about the plans next week.

I climbed to the top of a granite ridge. There from a bare glaciated dome I looked down over the blue, sparkling sweep of the pond with its clusters of lilies.

To the north and west moved Sanborn River and beyond were the tumbled ridges and the valleys, while over all there was a sense of freedom and spaciousness.

I have visited here in all seasons or the year. The valley is a symphony in spring, when the slender aspens are brushed with light green and the thrushes are in full song. Then suddenly comes the sound that changes everything, a soft nasal twang from high in the branches, the call of the nuthatch. He always brings me a vision of wilderness, those hikes to groves of tall, stately pines; the green here on the ground, is transformed to a smooth carpet of golden needles and the smell of resin in the sun. I see again the talking rivers, rugged ridges, timbered valleys and the many trails I followed, as vivid as though for the moment I had actually been there.

Today swallows and crows swept above me, circling or diving.

A woodpecker hammered away at a dry stub, its sharp clatter echoing over the hills.

Then near the mouth of the Sanborn there came a sound that transformed the scene, a lone and resonant quack. I focused my glasses on the spot and enjoyed the picture. Mother, and five baby ducks, were having a ball. For some time I sat watching the flock moving around as blithely as though there was no danger for a thousand miles. At last they moved from view.

Some sections of the granite where I sat were crisscrossed with veins of mica and feldspar.

From tiny fissures grew tufts of silvery-gray moss. Any surface rough enough to catch one can be the starting-point of growth. Water seeps into the fissures and frost breaks them, and so, in time the granite is covered with lichens.

As humus forms beneath them and deeper cracks come, seeds of herbs, shrubs, and even trees start. Autumn's picture is magic with vivid splashes of red and yellow against a white hillside of somber green.

When the ecstasy is over, they stand bare and gray with nothing to soften the rigidity of their branches.

My snowshoes have taken me there by a different route in winter. Then the water is hard and blue, wind swept or sculptured. As the sun hits the snow, it is changed from purple shadows to sparkling silver. It's cold and I hear the swish-swish of my snowshoes.

The blue-jay, a streak of blue flame, against glistening white, perches in a tree near by so I can admire his highway-man's mask, and his black and white wing bars. Of course he gives his hard, brazen call. Maybe he is telling me that it's good to be alive even in his hard frozen world, with wine and sparkles in the air.

So all seasons have their glory—songs of spring and new life, summer's growth, autumn's freshness and beauty, and the sparkle of winter.

I like all four seasons.

David and Sally Holt, Dexter, have been on vacation this last week so have visited many places including his parents and us. They returned to Dexter on Sunday.

Ann Holt, Bethel has been visiting at Higgins Beach and has also been with her parents.

Frank Curtis has been a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital since Friday for tests.

Flora Hutchinson, Dixfield, called on her cousin, Fay Holt, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Spires, flock moving around as blithely as though there was no danger for a thousand miles. At last they moved from view. Some sections of the granite where I sat were crisscrossed with veins of mica and feldspar. From tiny fissures grew tufts of silvery-gray moss. Olive Davis, Corres. — Excitement reigned here in town when shots were heard in the woods below the Curtis Hill road.

It was learned that a big bear, over two hundred pounds, had been hit on Route 26. It had broken his shoulders and he was in misery so the game warden obtained Gary Farnar to locate him with his bear dog and put him out of his misery, which was done Wednesday afternoon, July 14. Charlie Coffin's truck was involved. David Heath was driving for him. It was said that the bear ran into the truck by the door, denting it.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schroer, Billy and Johnny, were in Berlin, Wednesday to a church picnic.

Olive Davis went to Bridgton Sunday where she visited with her nieces and nephews for the day. Was it hot!

This has been a hot week, Friday being the hottest of them all. We need rain badly. The grass has stopped growing and is crunching under your feet. The gardens are dry so plants like pea vines are turning yellow.

Mrs. Esther Davis went on a trip with the Senior Citizens touring Boothbay Harbor recently. Having never been there she found the trip very interesting. A two hour cruise around the harbor was the highlight of the day. Naturally the gift shops were visited. They had lunch at Fisherman's Wharf before returning home.

Member of Congress
2nd District, Maine

It's August, 1981, and in northern Maine a heavy line of severe thunderstorms is bearing down on the area.

As the first rain begins to fall, farmers and emergency personnel tune in to National Weather Radio, a 24-hour weather forecasting service sponsored by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). The system warns of the possibility of record precipitation in the wake of the storm, and listeners immediately begin to take steps to protect their property and to ensure the safety of the general public.

Actually, the only element of truth in this scenario is the storm itself. The Caribou area received more than six inches of rainfall in a period of less than 25 hours in last summer's deluge, but National Weather Radio was unavailable to aid in the emergency.

Soon that situation will change. In the coming weeks, the people of Aroostook County will benefit from the NOAA service and its capability of providing accurate, up-to-the-minute forecasts of weather conditions and other emergency broadcasts.

While in Aroostook County recently, I had the opportunity to participate in a demonstration of the Weather Radio system. Caribou National Weather Service director Richard Maestric programmed the system to re-create the events of last August, a vivid reminder of how valuable the system would have been at the time and can be in the future.

A cooperative arrangement between my office, the Maine Potato Council, Presque Isle radio station WOZI, the town of Caribou and the National Weather Service resulted in the acquisition of the system for the County earlier this year. National Weather Radio can't stop storms and other natural disasters from occurring, but will enable area residents to receive an earlier warning when trouble strikes.

Operation of the system will require continuing donations from the residents of the area. More information on donations may be obtained by contacting the Maine Potato Council offices in Presque Isle.

SCSEP lives: An overwhelming vote last week continued the commitment of the House to the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP).

The resolution, which I co-sponsored, expresses the sense of the Congress that funding for SCSEP for fiscal 1983 and subsequent years should be provided at levels sufficient to maintain or increase the number of employment positions under the program. This means that about 340 Maine seniors will continue to supplement their incomes and provide valuable services for the community at large in the future.

As I told my colleagues in the House, one such program in Maine employs seniors with an average age of almost 63 years and average annual incomes of $2,402. The program targets its employment to

N. E.'S IDEAS SOUGHT ON SOLVING COMMUNITY NEEDS

The President's Task Force on Private Sector Initiatives is requesting help from the regions in identifying successful models of public-private sector partnerships in serving the social needs of communities. It is also requesting help in identifying new ways in which the public, private and voluntary sector can work together to fill community needs during this time of budgetary constraints.

Throughout New England, community partnerships among labor, business, religious organizations, public sector officials, civic leaders and fraternal clubs have been established. Some are successfully setting up day care hotlines, others are providing students' services for the elderly, others preventive health screening and many more services.

If you know of a successful public-private sector partnership which is functioning in your area, or if you have a proposal to establish such a partnership, please write the Federal Regional Council, Room 431, JFK Building, Government Center, Boston, Mass 02203.

Americans Living Longer, Healthier Lives

Current research shows that the men and women of this generation are living better and longer lives than their predecessors, according to U. S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, in a recent Maine speech.

Dr. Koop enumerated the many

INTEREST EXPRESSED IN REDUCED-RATE ENERGY CONSERVATION LOANS

An estimated 5,000 to 30,000 Maine homeowners would be interested in obtaining reduced-rate energy conservation loans, according to the results of a Maine State Housing Authority survey.

The information, based on a random mail survey to more than 3,000 households, shows the average loan desired would be just below $5,000, if the loans could be offered at rates between 11% and 15%.

"The survey indicates there will be a large demand for the funds from the second portion of the Housing Opportunities for Maine (HOME) Program, which we intend to begin this fall if the national bond market cooperates," said Sharon Mitchell Lumber, director of the Maine State Housing Authority.

That portion of the HOME Program, Ms. Lumber noted, is expected to make up to $10 million worth of reduced rate loans available for home improvements and energy conservation to eligible Maine homeowners.

The funds would be made available through the sale of MSHA's tax-exempt revenue bonds.

Ms. Lumber said the MSHA would delay the program until next year if the national bond market prevents a sale that would allow the loans to be offered at rates of 13% or less.

The average conventional home improvement loan today carries an interest rate of 17-18%.

The MSHA survey showed that the most common purposes for widows, the single hardest-hit group in our society in terms of poverty and unemployment.

Summer festivals: Summer is a time of respite in Maine from the harsh weather that confronts us so much of the year, so it's not surprising that Mainers enjoy the summer season in style.

One means by which the state celebrates summer is the plethora of summer festivals around the state. Virtually every facet of our economy and culture is honored at one time or another during the season, providing good family entertainment and fun while simultaneously serving to remind festival-goers of the importance of the product or culture to the state's well-being.

This summer, I've had the opportunity to attend the Acadian Festival in Madawaska, the Potato Blossom Festival in Fort Fairfield and the Central Maine Egg Festival in Pittsfield during my week ends in Maine. I hope to attend others before the summer is out, and I encourage all residents of the Second District to support local activities when they occur.

successes the country has witnessed in combating diseases. Since 1950: The mortality rate from heart disease has decreased by 30%; the death rate from cancer has dropped by 33% among persons under the age of 45; the death rate from stroke has decreased by 49%.

The Surgeon General noted that people in their early thirties have about six more years of life than their grandparents had.

The chief health problem we face today, he said, is our daily habits. Too much eating, drinking, smoking and lack of exercise are the leading contributors to disease today.

The federal government will launch a media campaign in the fall to help motivate people to choose better health habits.

Art Exhibit Focuses on Elderly

The Regional Office of the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services in Boston is hosting an art display focusing on the hopes and dreams of institutionalized elderly. The collection of drawings, lithographs and etchings is unique because the work was designed, in part, as therapy to help alleviate the loneliness of many elderly people in nursing homes and also as a vehicle for the expression of the richness of the sum-total of their lives. The artist, Julie Serrano, has participated in several exhibitions and last year won the New Hampshire Commission on Arts "Individual Artist Award."

The collection will be on display in the lobby of the JFK Building during the month of July.

to the planned project of lowering and insulating the ceiling above first floor office spaces since present leaky, high windows leave insufficient insulation and ceiling tile clearance. Work is to be completed before the advent of cold weather.

The Board considered the issue of digging a new trench at the landfill's western edge. The Manager opened the subject with the projections that the existing trench which is the last one that may be opened toward the eastern side of the landfill without illegally exposing the old dump used before 1977, is likely to be filled and closed by January of 1983. Expert opinion was presented to support the recommendation that one more trench could be installed on the western boundary of the landfill without changing the parameters of the original landfill plan accepted by DEP in 1977. The Board moved to accept this plan and directed the Manager to develop excavation specifications to be used as a basis for bids from private contractors. Discussion of funding for this project was tabled for a later meeting to coincide with review of the specifications.

In the main topic of the evening wanting an energy conservation loan are for added insulation and installation of storm doors and windows. Other popular uses are for improved heating equipment and exterior improvements, such as weatherstripping and caulking.

The survey questionnaire was modeled on a similar one from Kansas. Maine's three electric utilities provided the Authority with a random list of 3,026 names and addresses. The return of 1,094 usable questionnaires, a rate of about 36%, is considered more than adequate for this type of survey.

Slightly more than 81% of the respondents were homeowners, and the rest renters. As might be expected, homeowners indicated the greater desire for energy conservation loans.

Walking With Jesus Christ

Falling Away

Something to pray and think upon. Hebrews 10:1—"If we deliberately keep on sinning after we have received the knowledge of truth, no sacrifice is left, but only a fearful expectation of judgment and of raging fire that will consume the enemies of God. Any one who rejected the law of Moses died without mercy on the testimony of two or three witnesses. How much more severely do you think a man deserves to be punished who has trampled the Son of God underfoot, who has treated as an unholy thing the blood of the covenant that sanctified him, and who has insulted the Spirit of grace? 'For we know him who paid, it is mine to avenge; I will repay'—and again, 'The Lord will judge his people.' It is a dreadful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." "But my righteous one will live by faith. And if he shrinks back, I will not be pleased with him."

II Peter 2 speaks of false teachers—"They have left the straight way and wandered off to follow the way of Balaam son of Beor, who loved the wages of wickedness."

Verses 20-22 may apply to Christians of today—"If they have escaped the corruption of the world by knowing our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and are again entangled in it and overcome, they are worse off at the end than they were at the beginning. It would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than to have known it and then to turn their backs on the sacred commandment that was passed on to them. Of them the prophets are true: 'A dog returns to its vomit' and 'a sow that is washed goes back to her wallowing in the mud.'"

Hebrews 6:— "It is impossible for those who have once been enlightened, who have tasted of the heavenly gift, who have shared in the Holy Spirit, who have tasted the goodness of God and the pow-

The Board reviewed the direction and future action for passage of a proposed traffic ordinance. Incorporating citizen comments and concerns provided in various public hearings during the past two years, this ordinance is designed to update and streamline Bethel's traffic regulations to provide maximum safety while facilitating control and flow of traffic in otherwise congested areas. When passed, this ordinance will provide the key ingredient in traffic safety enforcement; without an ordinance judges have been reluctant to render judgements against traffic violators. Concentrating on the area of no-parking zones, the Board made several revisions that will promote safety and, at the same time, facilitate business interests that rely on curbside parking. In a future workshop session, the Board will tackle remaining revisions to the text and address the issue of how best to inform the public of the contents of the lengthy proposed ordinance.

The Board of Selectmen will hold their next meeting on Monday, Aug. 9, at 7 o'clock in the Bethel Savings Bank meeting room.

The Community Safety and Law Enforcement Committee will meet in the Town Office meeting room at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, Aug. 11.

ers of the coming age if they fall away, to be brought back to repentance; because to their loss they are crucifying the Son of God all over again."

Hebrews 5:11-14: "We have much to say about this, but it is hard to explain because you are slow to learn." etc. 3:12—"See to it, brothers, that none of you has a sinful, unbelieving heart that turns away from the living God. But encourage one another daily, as long as it is called today, so that one of you may not be hardened by sins' deceitfulness."

To the Editor:

The last chapter in Harvey Wasserman's and Norman Solomon's book "Killing Our Own," entitled "Surviving the New Fire", deals with possibilities and conditions of surviving nuclear accidents.

They stress the lack of radiation health units, of means of managing the medical aspects of nuclear accidents, of any safety lessons learned from TMI, and of real competence in operating atomic power plants. In addition, there are hardly any federally approved evacuation plans for the more than 70 nuclear reactors operating in the U. S.

With emphasis on the benefits and profits of the nuclear industry, not on the safety of workers and nearby residents, the licensing process has been speeded up. The findings of farmers and private citizens, the complaints of possible and probable victims of radiation, and the warnings of so-called "dissident" doctors and scientists, have been either ignored or downgraded.

Studies of the health of nuclear workers have been fraught with controversy and suppression. Little attention and even less publicity have been given to statistics regarding the resultant illness of 300,000 soldiers exposed to A-bomb tests or to the suffering over the years of survivors of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. "In fact," writes Wasserman and Solomon, "all signs indicate that radiation from bomb tests, power reactors, uranium mines, mills and tailings piles, bomb production factories, 'rear end' waste dumps, commercial production facilities, and x-ray machines are far more dangerous than previously expected."

Even vegetation is more severely affected than was once supposed. Most susceptible of all to damage from radiation, because of rapid cell division, are the unborn and the very young.

Only demonstrations by the awake and concerned citizens of America have driven home to the public what these authors call "no citizen, the complaints of possible and probable victims of radiation, and the warnings of so-called 'dissident' doctors and scientists, have been either ignored or downgraded."

workers have been fraught with controversy and suppression. Little attention and even less publicity have been given to statistics regarding the resultant illness of 300,000 soldiers exposed to A-bomb tests or to the suffering over the years of survivors of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. "In fact," writes Wasserman and Solomon, "all signs indicate that radiation from bomb tests, power reactors, uranium mines, mills and tailings piles, bomb production factories, 'rear end' waste dumps, commercial production facilities, and x-ray machines are far more dangerous than previously expected."

Even vegetation is more severely affected than was once supposed. Most susceptible of all to damage from radiation, because of rapid cell division, are the unborn and the very young.

Only demonstrations by the awake and concerned citizens of America have driven home to the public what these authors call "no citizen, the complaints of possible and probable victims of radiation, and the warnings of so-called 'dissident' doctors and scientists, have been either ignored or downgraded."

continued from Page One referendum will culminate nearly two years of work by the Board—hence, its inclusion as a proposed goal for the coming year.

2. Adopt an Evaluation System for Students to Determine if Standards for Student Achievement Are Being Reached - During FY82, the Board of Directors adopted a set of minimum standards for student achievement that had been developed by a committee of teachers and administrators in S.A.D. 44. In the year ahead, the teachers, administrators, and Board of Directors must reach a decision on how to evaluate if students have met these standards for student achievement. This evaluation system could be locally developed criterion referenced examination, a nationally normed standardized achievement test, or another form of assessment that is acceptable to all of the parties involved. The establishment of a clearly understood evaluation system to accompany the minimum standards for student achievement will result in more effective instruction throughout the district.

3. Continue the Evaluation of the Delivery of Vocational Education to Secondary Students in S.A.D. 44 - During the past year, a committee of citizens, teachers, administrators, and Board members explored the possibility of offering Telstar Juniors and Seniors a vocational education program independent of the Northern Oxford Vocational Area Program. While the initial analysis of an in-house alternative indicates that the overall cost of a district-run vocational program would be significantly higher than the cost of

FIRE TOWER REACTIVATED IN BAXTER STATE PARK

The first fire tower to be reactivated by the Department of Conservation's Maine Forest Service (MFS) in over 30 years became operational on Monday, July 26 on Burnt Mountain in Baxter State Park according to Wallace Townsend Jr., MFS Regional Ranger.

"The Burnt Mountain Tower is being reestablished to provide a continuous observation point for an area where heavy recreational use and high fire hazard caused by the spruce budworm and blowdowns coincide," Townsend said.

The fire tower is being staffed by veteran forest fire watchman Benne Boyington, who began his career with the Maine Forest Service at Kennebeco Mt. Fire Tower in Franklin County in 1956. Boyington has been a Forest Service Ranger in Baxter since 1970.

A fire tower on 1,793 foot tall Burnt Mountain in Township 3 Range 10 was first established in 1924. Although the steel portion of the 40 foot high structure has survived for 58 years, the wooden cab was removed in the mid-sixties when it became a safety hazard to Baxter State Park visitors.

The first fire tower in the United States was established in 1905 on Squaw Mountain near Greenville. Most of Maine's fire towers were established between 1905 and 1935 and at one point there were 103 in operation.

Beginning in the late 1960's, the NOVA program, the analysis also indicates that more students from Telstar might participate in a locally run vocational program. The total impact, then, might be a lower per capita cost for vocational education. While a recent State Board of Education decision makes the withdrawal of a single district from a vocational region unlikely, the Board of S.A.D. 44 is still interested in exploring other alternatives, such as a new cost sharing formula, or the development of new programs through NOVA.

Furthermore, the withdrawal may be pursued despite the State's recent decision.

Each of these goals are an extension of major undertakings the Board initiated previously, but each goal has been restated and redefined in light of the progress made in the past year. The final two goals that were proposed for consideration by the Board of Directors were:

1. Review and Reorganize the S.A.D. 44 Policies - Well-defined, well-organized policies are critical to the operation of any organization. The district has not conducted a systematic review of its policies and procedures for five years, and such a review will help the Board define its role and its mission.

2. Evaluate the Extracurricular Offerings for Students in S.A.D. 44 - During the past year, much discussion has focused on the nature of extracurricular offerings for students in S.A.D. 44. In the year ahead, the Board, working through various subcommittees, Parent Advisory Councils, or standing committees will conduct a careful evaluation of the extracurricular offerings for students in the school district.

At their meeting of Aug. 2, the Board of Directors will review these and any other goals advanced by the Board. During the past two school years, the Board goals have been effective in helping the district administrators and teachers to focus on those issues which are most important to the citizens of S.A.D. 44. If you have any suggestions regarding goals for the coming school year, please feel free to share them with Board members in the days ahead.

FINE AND/OR JAIL CAN BE RESULT OF BRINGING TOO MUCH LIQUOR INTO MAINE

People coming into Maine can be fined and/or sent to jail for bringing in more liquor than State law allows.

"The amount of liquor per vehicle (not per person) that may be brought into the State is one case of malt liquor (beer), one gallon of wine and one gallon of 'hard' liquor," said Captain John S. Martin, Director, Liquor Enforcement, Maine Department of Public Safety.

According to Martin, Liquor Enforcement officers have received inquiries as to how much liquor people wanting to visit Maine may bring in, and how much Mainers may bring back from being out of state.

To help on voluntary compliance with the law, Martin reminds citizens, "The law is being strictly enforced and any violations that are found—not only by Maine Liquor Enforcement officers, but also by other police officers—will result in the individual being summoned to District Court and having the illegal liquor confiscated."

Violation of the State liquor importation law can result in being fined not more than $500, being confined not more than 11 months in jail, or both.

many towers were replaced by air detection flights which proved to be cost efficient. Burnt Mountain Tower joins 26 other towers now operating throughout the State. The towers provide continuous observation of forest lands and valuable communications links in many instances.

Townsend indicated that while recent rains provided temporary relief from high fire danger in parts of the northern region, the rain was not enough to provide lasting relief. "No rain was recorded in Daqaugon on the Canadian border and less than half an inch fell in backcountry areas near the St. John and Allagash Rivers. Streams remain low in the backcountry and we cannot fill an Indian pump in many of them. We will continue to restrict campfire permits for remote locations where the fire hazard remains high," Townsend said.

The meetings which are jointly sponsored by the Maine Town and City Management Association and the Bureau of Public Administration at UMO will be conducted in the English/Mathematics Building and registration will be conducted in the lobby area Monday, Aug. 16, from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m. The Tuesday evening awards banquet will be held at the Red Lion Restaurant in Bangor.

The deadline for registrations is Aug. 6 with the UMO Conferences and Institutes Division at 128 College Avenue, Orono.

37th ANNUAL NEW ENGLAND MANAGEMENT INSTITUTE AT ORONO, AUG. 16-18

Leadership from the perspective of social issues and the uses of power and authority will be the theme of the University of Maine at Orono's 37th annual New England Management Institute Monday to Wednesday, Aug. 16 to 18, at the UMO campus.

Layne Longfellow, senior associate of the Health Education Institute of Phoenix Baptist Hospital and Medical Center, will conduct a two-day workshop on the topic "Power and Authority: A Leader Is a Hero Who Knows How to Manage." Longfellow will discuss the demands of local governments and the requirements needed in a municipal manager who must also fill the role of municipal leader.

As a lecturer and consultant in the behavioral sciences, Longfellow is a frequent keynote speaker and seminar leader. He is former director of executive seminars for the Menninger Foundation, and is currently president of Lecture Theatre, Inc., and director of wilderness seminars for the Banff Centre in Alberta. He is also a composer and musician and co-inventor of two Psychology Today "games" for personal and professional use.

Longfellow's presentation at the UMO conference will interweave lectures, slides, graphics and music and is designed to be of interest to managers' spouses who are encouraged to attend.

The Wednesday (Aug. 18) program will feature discussion of employment experiences in the private sector by city and town managers who have left municipal employment. Participating in the panel discussion, Is There Life After Municipal Management, will be four former city/town managers, Bruce Benway, Eben Marsh, Jack Dexter and Paul Devine. David Miller, a former manager who has returned to municipal management after employment in the private sector, will serve as panel moderator.

The meetings which are jointly sponsored by the Maine Town and City Management Association and the Bureau of Public Administration at UMO will be conducted in the English/Mathematics Building and registration will be conducted in the lobby area Monday, Aug. 16, from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m. The Tuesday evening awards banquet will be held at the Red Lion Restaurant in Bangor.

QUILT EXHIBIT OF WOODSTOCK HISTORICAL SOC. RESOUNDING SUCCESS

Last Saturday's exhibit, "Quilts From Grandma's Attic," was a notable success for the Woodstock Historical Society. Considering that few other historical societies in the area have attempted such an undertaking, it had the added advantage of novelty. The quilts were hung in the Town Hall, a cornucopia of color and design. Many were well over a century old and included nearly every type of the quilt genre imaginable. The exhibit was organized by Jane Mills, Eva B. Twitchell, Dorothy Hooper, and Kay Billings. The food sale next door in the Grange Hall was supervised by Annie T. Crockett and Hazel Brooks. A display of crafts accompanied the sale and flea market items were available. Mary Billings' afghans and leatherwork were greatly admired.

The museum was also open in the school annex and was attended by Cuthbert Larry Billings and Trudy Brehmer. The considerable additions to the permanent collection were all catalogued and displayed for the day. All in all, this day proved the most ambitious and successful undertaking of the Woodstock Historical Society to date. The community is fortunate to profit from the labors of society members. Local art is well represented by such exhibits.

THE GILEAD WOMEN'S CLUB

The Gilead Women's Club held its regular meeting on July 20 with the secretary presiding. Due to the small attendance, there will be a special meeting on Aug. 3. All members please try to attend! Summer trip plans will be finalized!

Upton

— Mrs. Arline Bernier, Corres. —

The Planning Board met Monday night with Rev. and Mrs. Edgar Bailey of Portland and Ron McNeil of Pownal as guests. Ron and the Baileys have friends in Upton on which they can learn to live simply without the comforts which can get burdensome.

They had found among the regulations one that requires a year round residence to have electricity. Having been on the Planning Board when the rules were drawn up I know the intent was to avoid fire risk and have homes wired as safely as possible rather than require that electricity be brought into every house. It points out how insane a regulation or law can be if one is not extremely careful of wording. This particular one certainly should be redone to apply only when a home is wired.

SEN. WILLIAM COHEN

From Washington

After a decade of inactivity, a once-prominent industry is again on the rise throughout New England—accompanied by a "back to basics" spirit that is shared by its producers and consumers alike. The recent resurgence in the sheep industry is partly due to a growing enthusiasm for the pursuit of small-herd, part-time sheep farming, as people move from cities to rural areas and seek productive, profitable uses of their land. It is also helped by a widespread demand for natural—rather than synthetic—fibers, such as wool.

Maine has experienced a 36% increase in sheep farming in four years, and now has some 15,000 head of sheep and 550 producers. The state's sheep industry is centered south of Bangor and north of Portland, with a concentration in the central coastal area of the state.

At least half of the sheep farmers in Maine have "commercial operations," deriving most of their income from the sale of lamb or wool. The rest of the sheepherders keep "hobby flocks" because sheep raising complements their primary agricultural enterprises.

Unfortunately, both products of the sheep industry have suffered from depressed prices since 1980, with a drop in wool prices this year resulting from the government's removal of a tariff on imported wool. About 15% of the state's sheep farmers keep flocks primarily for producing wool, although wool production is usually at least a part of most sheep farming operations.

There is good news ahead, however, not only for sheep producers and wool processors, but those involved in the textile industry in Maine. The U. S. Department of Agriculture recently decided to move its wool processing research laboratory from Albany, California, to New England. The site being seriously considered is the Textile Research Laboratory in Natick, Mass., operated by the Department of Defense.

DEER SEASONS IN MAINE SET FOR 1982

Maine's 1982 deer hunting season will be the same as last year's, it has been announced by Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Glenn H. Manuel.

The season dates and zones were selected at a meeting of the Fish and Wildlife Advisory Council, following three public hearings and numerous comments from sportsmen across the state.

Firearms hunting for deer begins with one day in each zone for Maine residents only—October 30 in the northern zone and November 6 in the Southern and Western zones.

The regular deer hunting season, for all hunters, begins in each zone on the Monday following the residents-only Saturday—November 1 in the northern zone; and November 8 in Southern and Western zones. The seasons end November 20 in the Western Zone and November 27 in the Northern and Southern zones.

The special archery season begins October 1 statewide and ends October 29 in the Northern Zone and November 5 in the Southern and Western zones.

The Council voted to retain the Western Zone which has existed for two seasons, rather than accept a proposed new Southwestern Zone which, in effect, would have expanded the Western Zone to Kittery and east to the Kennebec River.

Department biologists had suggested the expanded Zone to give additional protection to the deer herd in that portion of the state where hunting pressure and habitat loss are increasing.

The Council voted to retain the current Western Zone for a third year in accordance with the plans when the zone was created, in order to consider the effectiveness of its shorter season as a deer herd management tool, according to Manuel.

In making its decision, the Council took into consideration the deer management opportunity provided in a new law, effective next year, which will allow the commissioner to regulate the killing of antlerless deer in selected areas, following a public hearing process.

According to Manuel, the 1981 Maine deer kill was 32,167, which was approximately 9% above the average of the past 10 years.

Gorham (Maine), a consulting and development firm, was recently hired to move the laboratory to a facility in the Northeast. The laboratory's goal is to establish an effective wool research program which will ultimately increase the use of domestic wool by developing a product of the best possible quality.

Nearly a year ago, I urged Secretary of Agriculture John Block to consider New England for the new location of the research laboratory. The Natick facility is an ideal solution for several reasons. More than half of the nation's weaving and yarn mills are located in the Northeast, and usually are not large enough to sustain their own research and development efforts. Many people are not aware that Maine is the leading wool textile state in the country, with 14 plants and 3,500 employees.

In addition to those directly associated with the sheep and woolen industries in Maine, a rather unlikely group is profiting from the recent revival of sheep farming. Potato farmers in Aroostook County are helping to meet the increased demand for locally grown grains by rotating potato crops with oats, legumes, and other feed grains which is ideal for sheep. The crop rotation produces sheep feed at substantially cheaper prices and enhances the quality of potatoes by decreasing soil erosion and allowing the soil to rebuild itself.

We are just beginning to see the benefits of the re-establishment of the sheep industry in Maine and the Northeast. There is clearly a great future potential for the industry's expansion, as the awareness increases of our area's unique suitability for raising sheep and developing and marketing their products.

AUGUST PROCLAIMED AS "MAINE PRODUCES MONTH"
Governor Joseph E. Brennan launched a promotional effort on behalf of Maine agricultural products at a press conference held on Tuesday morning, July 27, on the Blaine House grounds in Augusta.

The Governor proclaimed August as Maine Produces Month, when the State Department of Agriculture, Food and Rural Resources will join forces with Maine's agricultural community and private industry to stress the variety and quality of Maine farm products and their importance to the state's economy.

Those attending the event had an opportunity to sample a selection of fresh, nutritious, locally-produced food and news representatives were introduced to two new Department of Agriculture publications: "Maine Agricultural Products Buyers' Guide" and "Farmer to Consumer."

The buyers' guide is designed to assist commercial buyers in locating sources of Maine agricultural products and lists many small producers not previously included in such publications. "Farmer to Consumer" is intended to assist both residents and visitors in locating direct marketing outlets for farm-fresh Maine products. The listing includes farmers' markets, roadside stands, harvest-your-own operations and apple orchards.

Agricultural Commissioner Stewart N. Smith and members of his staff also announced plans for media promotional programs in support of "Maine Produces Month." Statistics indicate that Maine's gross farm income has averaged $433 million annually for the past five years. Value-added activities including processing and distribution make agriculture an estimated billion-dollar-a-year operation, ranking second only to the pulp and paper industry in Maine's overall economic picture.

Commissioner Smith, Donald W. Westfall, director of the Department's Bureau of Agricultural Marketing, and John Jones, acting director of the Division of Market Development, expect Maine Produces Month to become an annual event.

Students desiring forms for physical examinations should contact the High School (824-2136).

VA HOME LOANS NOT SUBJECT TO "DUE-ON" CLAUSE

Recent Supreme Court rulings allowing Federally chartered savings and loan associations to require immediate mortgage repayment on sale of a house does not affect loans that have been guaranteed by the VA.

In the case of Veterans Administration guaranteed loans, any "due-on-sale" clause is not valid.

An exception to this is the new VA-guaranteed mortgages that are being made through the new MSHA HOME Program. Veterans are being fully informed of the "Due-On-Sale" provision upon making application for MSHA loans.
